Submission: Objection

Comments: Crouch End does not need a "a world class model of civic renaissance" it only needs something good enough for the patrons of the W3/5/7/41/91 bus routes - how else is any one going to get to it - there are no trains and nowhere to park. Scale down the overweening ambition and you can scale down the hideous blocks of people hutches, leaving some space to plant trees.

And how can "London's greenest borough" really put its name to a project which will create too many dwellings in too small a space and reject every form of locally produced energy as "not financially viable". The document FINAL_Planning Statement.pdf on page <http://www.planningservices.haringey.gov.uk/portal/servlets/Applica...> specifically excludes combined heat and power, photovoltaic, wind power, geothermal power, biomass indeed anything that might be thought of as renewable.

The interval between publication of the plans and the development forum was too short - no considered response can possible be made to such a mass of documentation in such a short time.

It is not at all evident from the pages on Haringey's planning site what is the purpose of any of the documents - at the very least an index to these papers should be provided
